

Harpeth Hills Animal Hospital

Nashville, Tennessee

The owner of the Harpeth Hills Animal Hospital wanted to give his facility a major expansion - the final building was 7 times larger than the original - but he also wanted to be able to see his patients during the build.

Carden Company utilized Butler Manufacturing's pre-engineered components for the project, which allowed the expansion to be completed around the existing building with less disruption and in less time than with traditional construction. The doctor didn't have to close a single day for construction, and he now has enough room to serve his community, with better treatment and waiting room facilities, and even space for boarding pets.