Nashville, Tennessee

When the Franklin Road dealership expanded their product line, they needed to expand and renovate their showrooms to provide a separate identity for each brand: Jaguar, Porsche, Audi and Saab.

The owner also wanted to be able to operate the dealership during the renovation, so the Carden construction team had to manage a tight worksite that was safe for both customers and cars.

The final result was owner satisfaction: “We did the initial budget and [the owner] decided that was a little more than he wanted to spend, so he cut out some things. Later he added them back in. I think that’s a vote of confidence, when the owner comes back and says, ‘I like this so much, I think I want the rest of it!’ - Architect Colleen Atwood.
